Nowhere will be better, so it's now here.

I do have a lot to say about the past year. Albeit this is just a small thesis for the course Geometric Group Theory, I still decide to write down my words here.

I really learned and comprehended a little mathematics this year, I think, which owes to our Professors. They led me into an attractive view and helped me understand that. It has been a great privilege and joy for me to explore the unknown with them.

This is also a year of enormous change to me.

Mathematics becomes more attractive to me. I appreciate that mathematics is willing to show its beauty again, and I hope it can do this as long as possible.

I gradually move towards the lifestyle as a math-worker(wishfully one day, a mathematician), rather than a student, expecting to walk on this road nonstop.

I also make the effort to adapt to the loneliness in my life, which was hardly felt before I graduated. I am grateful to my friends at Fudan University, since they have tried their best.

To Yincan and Yuwen, without whom this thesis would have been finished earlier.

To all my families and friends, for being my side, physically or mentally.

Also, to myself, who I substantially like in the past year.
